The American Inns of Court recently named law school alumnus Kevin Brady, '82, its 2004 recipient of the A. Sherman Christensen award.

The award is given to a member of an American Inn of Court who has provided - at the local, state or national level - distinguished, exceptional and significant leadership to the American Inn of Court movement. The recipient exemplifies the leadership and commitment qualities displayed by Judge A. Sherman Christensen, the founder of the first American Inn of Court.

Brady received his J.D. magna cum laude and served as editor-in-chief of Widener's law review: The Delaware Journal of Corporate Law between 1981 and 1982. He holds a master's degree in business administration from Widener University and a bachelor of arts degree in biological sciences from the University of Delaware.

The Kennett Square, Pa. resident is counsel in the complex mass torts/insurance litigation department at Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP in Wilmington. He is widely published on the topics of electronic discovery, insurance and ethics.

He received the award at the American Inns of Court Celebration of Excellence in Washington, D.C. U.S. Supreme Court Justice Stephen G. Breyer hosted the event.
