Regional Law Libraries

Within fifty miles of both Widener University School of Law campuses are libraries with collections focusing on law. Widener law students may use the collections of these libraries. Materials must be used within the respective library. If materials need to be checked out, Widener law students must make that request through Interlibrary Loan (ILL) on their Widener home campus. Although library hours are given, libraries can and do change their hours without notice. For this reason, it is best always to call the library in advance to assure it is open when you want to be there, especially during the summer months and when classes are not in session.
