

Is Solo or Small Firm Practice for You?

Robert Davis, Esq.

Mr. Davis is a solo practitioner in Harrisburg, PA. He represents lawyer respondents, judicial officers, health professionals, government employees and officers and others in PA and WV before discipline boards and the State Ethics Commission. He also provides advisory opinions and serves as an expert witness on questions of professional responsibility, ethics, fiduciary duties of lawyers and other professionals and “the law of lawyering”. Mr. Davis has taught numerous classes and seminars for the Widener Law, the Pennsylvania Bar Institute and a number of other continuing education organizations. He also writes articles on ethics and professional responsibility.

Jan Matthew Tamanini, Esq.

Ms. Tamanini, a Harrisburg-based solo practitioner, has a rich and diverse background, with experience in the law, journalism, public relations, and volunteer work. This breadth of experience gives her the ability to understand a wide variety of issues to benefit her clients. Before founding JMT Law, LLC, Ms. Tamanini served as counsel to several state agencies. She has also volunteered for numerous boards and committees and provided pro-bono legal services to several nonprofit organizations and has authored articles that represent her diverse, varied and accomplished background.

Diana Schimmel, Esq.

Ms. Schimmel, a Widener Law – Harrisburg alumna, began her career in civil practice in Philadelphia, but soon chose to focus exclusively on family law as her committed specialty. She has served as the interim law clerk to The Honorable Donna M. Woelpper in the Family Court of Philadelphia, Juvenile Dependency branch. Most recently, Ms. Schimmel worked as a Child Advocate Attorney for the Defender Association of Philadelphia in its Child Advocacy Unit. She is active in the legal community at the local, state and national level. She is also a member of the Nicholas A. Cipriani Family Law Inn of Court and regularly volunteers her time and talents with indigent and child advocacy programs.